Dear Mr Banks,

I understand that the developer has attempted to reduce the visual impact of the Llandinam wind power station by relocating and/or repositioning a couple of the turbines.

I understand that the same developer calculated that since each turbine disappears in the crowd, the visual impact of each is "Minimum". Living on planet Earth, the logic in this argument is alien to me and, in my opinion, should be discarded as an attempt to manipulate the Public Inquiry outcome. For those of us living, visiting and working here, the visual impact was, is and will be "Severe".

Yours sincerely,

Oili Hedman
